6.1.	Determining Voting Procedure The ASCC has no guidelines to the conducting of votes at an AGM. The ASCC constitution states that: (1) If the number of nominations exceeds the number of vacancies on the Committee, ballots for those positions must be conducted. (2) The ballot must be conducted in a manner determined from time to time by resolution at a general meeting. To clarify this situation the President proposes the following be put to the general meeting: That in the event of number of nominations exceeding the number of vacancies on the Committee, a secret ballot for those positions will be conducted. Members present will be asked to vote by listing no more than X of the nominees, where X is the number of vacancies. Votes will then be counted with those with the most number of votes filling the positions in order, until the vacant positions have been filled. For example, if there are 6 vacancies for general committee members, and 7 nominees, the six with the highest number of votes will fill the positions. Should there be a number of nominees at the bottom of this list with the same amount of votes, a further secret ballot will be done with just these names.	Andrea Martin
